Of Headache

THE EVENING STORY.

Barney Didn't Propose.

candid, as the crabbed old man's speech had been, and though it was scrawled in chalk on the turf-smoked shelf above the fireplace, the lawyer man in the whole country but could recognize the snarl of letters as beonging to the snarling neighbor who for Norah was the only child, and the cot and the entire patch of rocks pounds in open market; and, besides a heathen since she was old enough to drop praties, without so much as a bit of ribbon or feather like the other girls? But the majority were of a different mind. They were of the kith and kin, and contended joyeusly kith and kin, and contended joyeusly that the will was the act of a true and honest man who was in his right mind entirely. Nine hundred and forty pounds had Mike saved during his fifty years of active and unscrupulous acumulating, and 200 of this was left by express direction for the expenses of a suitable funeral. All the rest, barring the little thatched cot, was given by the will "entoirely an equally to all me kith an kin in acknowledgment of their close attindance."

All the kith and kin came to the funeral, seventy and four of them, and

She was pretty and did not know it, but it made people speak nicely to her. And she was only eighteen, and the sun shone bright and the grass grew green, and though her little patch was rocky there was a merry stream which dashed across it, plunging toward a deep fall whiteh wise people said would be valuable some day as a water power: only there was no one to start a mill and nothing to put into one if it should be started. But while Norah was a happy dreamer also. And then, no less to her wonder than that of the industrious neighbors, came her father's death and the giving of the bulk of his property to the disreputable relatives he had flouted. But though the personal property Norah was out on the hillside taking an account of stocks and making plans. The kith and kin were hurrying away to hasten preparations for their journey across the sea. Norah walked slowly and thoughtfully to a ledge which overhung the stream and overlooked the whole hillside. From there she could count everything she owned, except the stones. "Sixteem ducks," she enumerated aloud, touching her fingers." Sixteem ducks," she enumerated aloud, touching her fingers. The morning after the seventy and four divisions had been made in the personal property Norah was out on the hillside taking an account of stocks and making plans. The kith and kin were hurrying away to hasten preparations for their journey across the sea. Norah walked slowly and thought. "It is necessary in order to treat headaches properly to understand the causes which produce the affection," says Dr. J. W.
Ray of Blockton, Ala. Continuing, he says:
"Physicians cannot even begin the treatment of a disease without knowing what causes give rise to it, and we must remember that beadache is to be treated according to the same rule. We must not only be particular to give a remedy intended to counteract the cause which produces the headache, but we must also give a remedy to relieve the pain until the cause of the trouble has been removed. To answer this purpose Anti-tamina Tablets will be found a mo t convenient and satisfactory remedy. One tablet every one to three bours gives comfort and rest in the most severe cases of headache, neutralis and particularly the headaches, of women."

When we have a patient subject to regular attacks of sick headache, we should cault a him to keep his bowels regular, for which nothing is better than "Actoids," and when he feels the least sign of an oncoming attack, he should take two A-K Tablets. Such patients should always be instructed to carry a few Anti-kammia Tablets, so as to have them ready for instant use. Those tablets are prompt in action, and can be depended on to produce relief it a very few minutes.

Anti-kammia Tablets can be obtained at all druggists.
